

Pretty Power Priestesses

CHARACTER CREATION

There are four Traits: Body, Grace, Heart, and Mind. Each Trait has three Skills associated with it:

BODY - Athletics, Fighting, Grit

HEART - Charm, Intuition, Wit

GRACE - Agility, Finesse, Stealth

MIND - Healing, Lore, Noticing

Pick two Traits as your character's "good" Traits, and two as your character's "bad" Traits. Then assign skills as follows:

- Each Skill starts at 2.
- You may raise a Skill in a good Trait from 2 to 3 by lowering another Skill in a bad Trait from 2 to 1.
- Once you're done, choose one Skill at 3 and raise it to 4, or choose one Skill at 2 and raise it to 3.

PLAY

1. The Guide describes the scene, then each player describes their character's action narratively.
2. The Guide uses each description to determine which Skill to roll, and at what Difficulty (Impossible, Hard, Normal, Easy, or Automatic).
3. If a player's difficulty isn't Impossible or Automatic, they roll a d6, or two d6 if the roll was Easy or Hard (choosing the better/lower die for an Easy roll, or the worse/higher die for a Hard roll). If the chosen die is less than or equal to their Skill, they succeed!

SETBACKS AND COMEBACKS

The Guide can decide that some situations are high-stakes. A character who fails a high-stakes roll suffers a setback to the Trait related to that roll. Each setback makes all Skill rolls associated with that Trait harder (i.e., easy rolls become normal, normal rolls become hard, and hard rolls become impossible); two setbacks on a single Trait makes all rolls in that Trait two steps harder (easy becomes hard, while normal or hard become impossible), and a character with three setbacks on a single Trait can no longer succeed at any actions related to that Trait at all. A character with six or more total setbacks across all four of their Traits is out for the count until they earn a comeback.

A character gets a comeback when they have a chance to heal, calm themselves, or otherwise reorient. Each comeback cancels one setback.

EXPERIENCE

Whenever you succeed by rolling double '1's on a hard roll or fail by rolling double '6's on an easy roll, you gain an experience for that skill, to represent the lesson you learned from the success or failure. If you get a comeback while you have experience, you can raise that skill by 1 level (to a maximum of 5), then remove all experience from all skills.

STORY

You are playing a high-school student who is also a shrine maiden - a girl tasked with the role of maintaining the balance between the spirit world and the human world. As a high-school student, you will go to class, talk with your friends, and do all the normal things that people expect you to. As a shrine maiden, you will uncover and fight corruption - a twisting of the natural world or the emotions of others that you can feel in your gut.

NATURE SPIRITS

To help you find and fight corruption, you will meet and befriend various nature spirits along the way. Nature spirits can hide almost anywhere, but they usually prefer pristine, calm places of beauty. You could find a raging river-spirit at a pool with a waterfall, or a forest-spirit in the largest tree of an untouched forest; but you could also find a meadow-spirit hiding in a single wildflower pushing up from a crack in a sidewalk, or a fox-spirit that prowls the edges of campus. Sometimes, the spirits you find might be in pain or angry; corruption affects spirits much more strongly than people. Freeing spirits of corruption is one of the easiest ways to befriend them.

TRANSFORMATION

Once you've befriended a spirit, you can form a pact with it. A spirit can only form a pact with one shrine maiden at a time (and some spirits might become jealous if their human starts forming pacts willy-nilly), but most shrine maidens maintain pacts with a few spirits to help them with their fight against corruption. A pact lets a spirit inhabit the shrine maiden for a short time (usually a single scene), transforming her into a powerful force of nature. When a shrine maiden lets a spirit inhabit her, the clothes she is wearing transform to display the power and personality of the spirit she has joined with. While she is transformed, the shrine maiden can use various magical powers of the spirit she has joined with, using her own skills and choices to control and direct them. When she transforms back, she suffers a setback from the strain and fatigue of the merger.

BEATS

Each day of the story, you pass through three beats - the high-school, the shrine, and the hunt. The story will pass through each of the beats more than once, in any order.

At high school, you go to class, make human friends, and navigate teen drama. This is a good time to gain comebacks, but sometimes you can experience a setback instead!

At the shrine, you clean, perform rituals, research scrolls, and rest and relax. The shrine is usually a safe space to gain a comeback.

On the hunt, you investigate clues for corruption, meet and befriend new

SAMPLE SPIRITS

YAMATSUMI, SPIRIT OF THE MOUNTAIN

Yamatsumi grants extraordinary strength and resilience for Athletics and Grit rolls, letting a channeling maiden easily lift up to a ton or withstand a hit from a bus at highway speed. He also grants awareness of vibrations and movement in the ground around her, increasing her Noticing abilities to super-human awareness. After the channel is closed, the maiden will suffer a setback to her Body to represent the strain of channeling so much raw strength and power.

Yamatsumi typically prefer costumes with thick brown and grey robes, rich gold and copper tassels, and sparkling emerald and amethyst gems.

KAMI-NO-KAZE, SPIRIT OF THE WIND

Kami-no-Kaze are notoriously difficult to tame, but fiercely loyal to those they have bonded with. A channeling maiden can use Agility to fly through the air at up to 100kph, or transform into a Stealthy mist to completely evade most detection. After the channel is closed, the maiden will suffer a setback to her Grace to represent the disorienting shift in speed and perception between her own body and the spirit's.

Kami-no-Kaze typically prefer costumes with long white gossamer veils and sleeves, thin silver ornaments and jewelry, and glittering diamonds.

MIZUCHI, SPIRIT OF THE RIVER

Mizuchi are deeply patient, caring spirits, who nevertheless hold deep grudges. They grant a channeling maiden the ability to conjure cleansing blasts of water that wash away corruption, poison, or disease, and a deep sense of the empathic currents that flow between people, bolstering her Intuition and Charm to superhuman levels when reading people's hearts. After the channel is closed, the maiden will suffer a setback to her Heart to represent the grief and empathy carried by the spirit's currents.

Mizuchi typically prefer costumes with long, slowly flowing silk streamers and sleeves in pastel colors, ornate silver ornaments and jewelry, and strings of sapphire and aquamarine beads that flow behind the maiden.

OMOIKANE, SPIRIT OF THE SCROLL

Omoikane is a quiet, meditative spirit of forgotten places and old memories. He boosts a channeling maiden's Lore and Noticing to supernatural levels, allowing her to instantly read and decipher ancient runes, diagnose hidden corruption at a glance, or analyze an enemy's combat patterns in seconds. After the channel is closed, the maiden suffers a setback to her Mind to represent the mental fog and confusion from processing vast amounts of cosmic information.

Omoikane strongly prefer well-fitting scholar's robes, round glasses, ornate rulers and calligraphy sticks, and understated signet jewelry.
